KIRBY JURY FAILS TO REACH VERDICT

JUDGE DISCHARGES JURORS WHEN THEY FAIL TO AGREE

Fourth Time a Jury Has Failed To Convict Josiah Kirby, President of The Cleveland Discount Company of Cleveland, Jury Stood Nine to Three For Acquittal.

For the fourth time, a jury has failed to convict Josiah Kirby on charges growing out of his operations as president of the Cleveland Discount Co.

Exactly 24 hours after it had received the charge of the court, a Delaware county jury was dismissed Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock because of its nine-to-three deadlock on the question of Kirby's guilt. The specific charge was the theft of $3000 worth of Cleveland Discount Co., preferred stock from Mrs. Grace Cooper, Delaware.

Two women and one man, out of the four women and eight men on the jury held out for conviction. After being dismissed, Mrs. Bonita Grimes, Mrs. Charles Jackman, and J. H. Rae admitted that they were set against the majority.

Mrs. Grimes was reported by all the jurymen to have been unrelenting in her contention that Kirby was guilty. Several other members of the jury declared quite freely that they were of the opinion that Josiah Kirby had never committed any crime.

Judge Harry Jewell of the Delaware county common pleas court told the jury that he was disappointed that it could not reach a verdict, because the case was important and expensive. After questioning five jury members, all of whom said they thought a verdict was impossible, he dismissed the jury.

Attorney General C. C. Crabbe, who had prosecuted the case at the request of the governor, said he was disappointed and that his future course was undecided.

Kirby said that he considered a nine-to-three verdict for acquittal in the Delaware county courts a victory equivalent to his previous trials.

The nine-to-three vote was the largest that has ever been reported against Kirby. Once before in one of his two Cleveland trials, there was a jury disagreement because one woman held out for conviction. Once he obtained an acquittal in a California court. At present he is under federal indictment for using the mails to defraud.

Three times during Thursday the court learned from the jury that there was a deadlock and that agreement was impossible. The jury resumed its deliberations at 8:30 a. m., after spending the night under surveillance of court bailiffs, in Delaware hotels. At 10 a. m., L. A. Morrison, foreman of the jury, pounded on the outer door. When the court assembled for a report, Sheriff Fred D. Harter told Judge Jewell that the jury wished to make a statement. Ushered into the box, Morrison said no headway was made. A short jury recess was permitted and deliberations were resumed under the court's direction.

Summoned into the courtroom at noon, the jurors reported there was no decision in sight, and that the vote had remained unchanged since three o'clock Wednesday. Later it was learned that the first ballot had been eight to four for acquittal and that half an hour after retirement it had changed to nine to three, with Mrs. Grimes leading the argument for conviction.

After the noon report the judge sent the jurors to lunch. By 1 o'clock they were reassembled. Just after they retired they sent word to Judge Jewell that they would like to have him read the charge to them again so that they could hear his voice on some of the disputed points. The request was denied them because there was involved the well known principle of "there is no infection of the court," and because they had before them the written charge.

From the beginning of the trial it was admitted by all concerned that the most important point in question was the intent behind the procuring of 30 shares of preferred stock of the Cleveland Discount Co., from Mrs. Cooper, widow of a former Delaware minister. In the judge's charge it was pointed out that before a verdict of guilty could be returned it would be necessary to find that plans of the company to retire preferred stock had been devised by stock into his hands for his own use. Only three of the jurors thought that this intent was at all evident from the testimony and argument in the trial which opened July 13.

Immediately after the discharge of the jury Kirby left for Cleveland, from where he will go to Berkeley, California, to join his wife and two children. In California he is organizing another financial corporation.

Associated with the attorney general in the prosecution were H. H. Griswold, first assistant attorney general, and Wilbur E. Benoy, special counsel in the attorney general's office.

The defense counsel was headed by Luther Day and Walter D. Meals, both of Cleveland, who had associated with them Berne Jones, Delaware.

Filipino Coast Guard Nucleus of New Navy

Manila.—With the organization and training of the officers and crews of the insular fleet of coast guard cutters along military lines, approval of which has been given by Governor General Wood, department heads and Brig. Gen. Rafael Crame, chief of the constabulary, are laying a modest beginning for a future Philippine navy. General Crame, with the approval of Secretary of the Interior Felipe Agoncillo, recently authorized the transfer of arms and other military equipment for use of the coast guard sailors, the men having volunteered to furnish their own uniforms.

At present the coast guard force consists of 300 officers and men. Although the sailors are not required to perform military service, it is said all have volunteered to do this additional work aboard ship and ashore.

THE OLD WORLD IS BECOMING A GRAND CAMP

Fifty-nine Nations Now Have More Men Under Arms Than in 1914.

Columbus, O., July 24 (U.P.).—There is nothing alarming in the fact that fifty-nine old world nations now have more men under arms than in 1914, Professor Wilbur Siebert, head of the Department of European history at Ohio State university and author of numerous essays on Europe, declared today.

In an exclusive interview Professor Siebert analyzed the United Press London dispatch showing how Europe rapidly is becoming an "armed camp."

These facts and figures are interesting and are important for the American people to know," the professor said. "But the increase in troops and air force improvements are not alarming. What these facts really show is that Europe is getting on her feet economically."

"Since the time of Charlemagne there has been war about every generation. But since the world war Europe has been engaged in rebuilding herself economically rather than in a military way. The array of military forces is a natural course of events. With a revival of economic conditions comes a rivalry for economic supremacy."

"This will continue for years before the people of Europe will begin thinking about war. Today the European outlook is decidedly optimistic."

On a recent tour of Europe, Professor Siebert said, he obtained the impression that if another war comes it will be between France and Great Britain due to the obliteration of the English channel as a barrier between the two countries by the development of the airplane. Naturally this is making both countries a bit nervous."

GOVERNOR VIC BOOMED FOR PRESIDENCY

Characteristics of Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and Woodrow Wilson.

Charles V. Truax, director of agriculture, in an address at a picnic of Hancock county Democrats at Findlay, paid a high tribute to Governor Vic Donahey and declared him to be presidential timber for 1928.

"Donahey has the characteristics of Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and Woodrow Wilson," the director stated.

He expressed the belief Governor Donahey would again be drafted into service by the people of Ohio for a third term as chief executive of the state.

Thomas B. Fletcher of Marion, congressman from the Eighth District, also was discussed as a candidate for the U. S. senate. Fletcher is now serving his first term in congress.

Thomas E. Dye, state chairman of the Democratic organization addressed the assembly on "The Comeback of Democracy."

He appealed to the Democracy of the state to lay aside bigotry and prejudice in every form.

Predicts Trip to Moon in "Jules Verne" Rocket

Boulder, Colo.—Human transportation to the moon by means of huge rockets may be a possibility in a few years—so rapid are the present day strides of science—in the opinion of Dr. Watson Davis, managing editor of Science Service.

"I am confident that in a few years a rocket will be perfected for making a trip, a la Jules Verne, from the earth to the moon," declared Doctor Davis in an address before the eighteenth annual convention of the American Society for the Advancement of Science here. "A model for such a rocket is now under construction," he said.

Doctor Davis also foresees the day when science will make possible the transformation of idiots into citizens through scientific treatment of the glands, and an era in which millions will be fed from synthetic food of Colorado's oil shale.

EFFECTIVE DRY LAW IN INDIANA

Indianapolis, July 22.—(U.P.).—Indiana's three months old drastic dry law is approximately 90 per cent effective Attorney General Gilliom revealed today in basis of reports from 35 counties.

Of 1,200 bootlegging and rum running cases tried since April 25, when the law became effective, 1,091 convictions have been obtained.

The dry law is the most stringent prohibition measure on the statute books of any state. Under the law a person with the odor of liquor about him is subject to prosecution while the discovery of empty liquor containers constitutes evidence of violation of the law.

RAILROADS

Made Defendants In $215,000 Damage Suits.

Cleveland, July 22.—(U.P.).—Five damage suits totaling $215,000 were filed in federal court here today against the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central and Nickel Plate railroads.

The largest suit was filed by George Thorsons, Laporte, Ind., brakeman against the New York Central for $100,000. Thorsons charged his skull was fractured in an accident caused by alleged negligence of the railroad.

Arthur R. Sealman, Charleston, Ill., a brakeman, sued the Nickel Plate for $35,000, charging his foot was crushed between two cars.

MAKE SLOGAN FOR THE OHIO STATE FAIR

Treasure Chest Will be Filled With Big Array of Valuable Prizes.

An enormous Treasure Chest, it may be built a half block long, 50 feet high in which to display an illimitable array of articles, will be one of the attractions for the Diamond Jubilee anniversary of the Ohio State fair, August 31 to September 5. To the persons attending the fair who submit the most acceptable slogans for use in promoting the 1926 State fair, will be given the Treasure Chest contents.

The slogan for the 1925 State Fair is: "No State So Fair—No Fair So Great."

Manufacturers from Ohio and all joining states are each contributing one unit of their product for the Treasurer Chest wealth. This array will include, it is expected, everything from an automobile to a paper of pins including clothing, kitchen utensils, hardware, food products and an itemized list of products.

Charles V. Truax, director of agriculture and G. R. Lewis, State fair manager, are having the Treasure Chest constructed. It will be placed in an advantageous place on the State fair grounds and the products contributed by the manufacturers will be displayed within the chest thruout fair week. Opportunity to contribute a 1926 State fair slogan will be given everyone attending this year's fair.

The best slogan to be selected from among those submitted by the more than 300,000 people who will attend the fair will earn for the contestant the privilege of possessing the Treasure Chest Capital prize. Other prizes will be distributed during Fair week.

OKLAHOMA CRITICISM IS SECONDED BY DONAHEY

Visiting Officials Condemn Penitentiary Idle House and Governor Agrees.

Columbus, July 23.—Conditions at the Ohio penitentiary, especially the existence of the "idle house," were scored in a statement made public yesterday by Oklahoma officials who recently made a tour of state prisons of the middle West.

The Ohio penitentiary was the most unsatisfactory one seen, John E. O'Neill, chairman of the board of public affairs of Oklahoma, declared.

Governor Donahey, when told of the statement, declared the criticism "is justified."

Story of the Built-Well Home

Chapter III

No, the rain does not damage Celetex Insulating Lumber. It is not effected by moisture and weather conditions. In many homes two-thirds of the heat in winter is wasted. Celetex stops heat waste without adding to the cost of building.

No home can be comfortable in all weather and is not modern unless properly insulated.

Celetex Insulating Lumber is used in thousands of refrigerator cars to keep heat in during winter and out during summer. It will do the same for the Built-Well Home.

Be sure and visit Monclair Addition now and see this home being built and covered with its warm coat before the weather-boarding and plaster goes on.

PLAN MUSEUM OF CIVIL WAR

Officials Ask That Pension Building Be Made Receptacle for Exhibits.

Washington.—Establishment of a Civil war museum in the Pension office building, the world's largest brick building in the court of which several inaugural balls have been held, probably will be authorized by congress soon after it meets in December.

The last survivor of the Revolutionary war was Daniel F. Bakeman, who died at Freedom, N. Y., April 5, 1869, aged one hundred and nine years and six months. The last widow pensioner of the war was Esther S. Damon of Plymouth Union, Vt., who died November 11, 1906, aged ninety-two years. The last survivor of the War of 1812 was Hiram Cronk of Ave, N. Y., who died May 13, 1905, aged one hundred and five years.

If history repeats itself, at least a quarter of a century will elapse before the chronicle of events will note the death of the last survivor of the Civil war, and the Twentieth century will be drawing to a close before the last widow pensioner will have passed away.

21,854 Veterans Die in Year.

In the last fiscal year 21,854 veterans of the Civil war and 21,296 widows of veterans were claimed by death. These figures give rise to many serious thoughts, the commissioner of pensions points out. What shall be done to preserve to future generations the history, traditions, lessons and inspiration of the wars, the intimate personal history of which is found in the 4,000,000 pension claims in the files of the pension bureau? In years to come, this bureau will be the mecca for thousands upon thousands seeking information concerning the men who fought in the Civil war.

By act of August 7, 1882, the congress made provision for the Pension building as a memorial to the men who bore the brunt of battle in war, and especially, in the Civil war. The corner stone was laid on March 19, 1883, and in May, 1885, the operations of the pension system were transferred to the new building. The exterior frieze of the building, showing a procession of soldiers and sailors of all branches of the service, was designed by Casper Buberl, and is indestructible evidence for all ages of the purposes for which the structure was authorized, designed, builded and dedicated.

Plan War Material Exhibit.

In Washington and elsewhere throughout the country there is a wealth of material that can be brought together for display within the pension building, showing the distinctive accouterments and implements of each of our wars; also models, paintings, heirlooms and relics. The pension bureau would thus become one of the attractions of the national capital.

Now that the ranks of our Civil war veterans are fast thinning, it is thought fitting that steps be taken to make the Pension office building a lasting museum of our nation's wars, from whose honored dead, as the martyred Lincoln voiced his thought in his Gettysburg address, "we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Models Not Jazz Mad;

Form Club to Prove It

New York.—Fifth avenue models are not "jazz mad" and because they are not have founded the Fifth Avenue Models' association.

Dorothy M. Pensel, temporary chairman of the committee, sent out the announcement in notes on lavender paper in which she said the models intended "to get back at the people who are always making trouble for us."

She listed six reasons for forming the association, the reasons being:

"The sensational magazines place us in a false light.

"Marrying men think we are all jazz mad and gold diggers.

"We are home girls and just as respectable as other working girls.

"We don't marry millionaires.

"Modeling is no fun, it's hard work, and we earn our wages.

"We want the public to know that we models are serious-minded business girls."

And so another illusion is shattered.

City Submerged in 1642

Revealed by Lake's Fall

Geneva.—The remaining part of the ancient town of Antronaplano, submerged on July 27, 1642, by a flood of the River Antrona, has been revealed by the fall of the level of Lake Antrona and the subsequent dropping of the river.

The entire population of Antronaplano was wiped out and the town remained under ten feet of water. Today the roofs and upper floors of the houses emerged and visitors peering in can see the skeletons of the victims of three centuries ago.

Lake Lenan is the lowest in years and special landings have been constructed for steamboats as the water is too shallow to permit approaching the customary landings.

"GLOOMY DEAN"

Believes Laborer's Grandsons Are Equals of Peers.

The question of the decay—or otherwise—of the nobility that was the glory of a generation or so past among our British cousins has been a much discussed problem recently. In this week's issue of Liberty the Very Reverend William Inge, of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, known as "The Gloomy Dean," because of his lamentations and prophecies, takes up the discussion, saying: "Aristocracies always decay; it is their nature to! Nothing fails like success; a ruling race or class always ends by ruling itself out.

"The war has given the coup de grace to a system which was already decaying. The young men of the upper class were the first to volunteer and the first to fall. Though they were the spoiled children of fortune and had every reason to cling to life, they exposed themselves with reckless self devotion—a sacrifice which was tragic because often unnecessary—and were mowed down till twenty per cent of all British officers were on the roll of honor.

"The privates paid just half this toll; one-tenth of the privates and one-fifth of the officers were killed. In this way scores of the old families were wiped out in the male line. The loss is irreparable; war selects the best for destruction.

"What the great war began taxation is finishing.

"I have in my mind two recently ennobled families whose grandfathers were day laborers. I cannot see that they are inferior in good looks or manners to the owners of the 'sixteen quarterings' on their armorial bearings."

Means of Obtaining Seed for Planting

Longer, Heavier Ears With Big Cobs Are Best.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The question of a possible relation between the physical characters of seed ears and productiveness is an important one in corn breeding and one which has been given much attention, says the United States Department of Agriculture. For many years the department has carried on a project for the production of improved varieties of corn for the different geographic sections of the United States, and in connection with this project records of the individual productiveness of several thousands of ears were kept. Measurements of the seed ears were also recorded, and the accumulated data, therefore, were well suited to a statistical study of the relation between seed-ear characters and productiveness.

The results of this study are published in Department Bulletin 1321, just issued. The department investigators have concluded that there is nothing in the data to indicate that selection on the basis of seed-ear characters could be used as a method of breeding. Selecting the longer, heavier ears with proportionately heavy cobs and with relatively few rows of wide, thick kernels is warranted as a means of obtaining a supply of good seed for general planting, however.

A copy of the bulletin may be secured upon request, as long as the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Improvement in Quality of Seed Help to Crops

The Department of Agriculture estimates that more than 14,000,000,000 pounds of seed, exclusive of seed potatoes, seed sugar cane and other vegetable planting stocks are sown annually in the United States. Even a small improvement in the quality of seeds would result in larger crops with little or no additional expense and an enormous gain in the aggregate production or in an equal production on a smaller acreage.

Improvement in his crops is well within the power of every farmer by means of buying better-class seed from expert organizations which are constantly on the lookout for improved and higher yielding varieties, and by following the work of their local experiment stations which are constantly testing varieties with a view to determining their availability and value for the state which they represent.

One of the easiest methods of increasing the yield is by using more carefully cleaned seed. A great deal of seed is produced which should never be sown as its quality does not justify its use. As the supply of farm seeds is usually in excess or at least equal to the demand it would hardly be profitable for farmers in general to try to turn seed specialists and produce their own seed, for the time and pains necessary would not yield the returns to make it worth while.

Sweet Clovers Adapted to Various Conditions

The sweet clovers are adapted to a wide range of soil and climatic conditions. They are among the hardiest plants grown and succeed where many other plants fail. Because of their deep rooting system they are more or less drought resistant. At the same time they seem to be able to withstand excessive moisture better than most crops. There are two essentials, however, to the successful growth of sweet clover. These are inoculation with the proper nitrifying bacteria and a soil rich in lime.

For an emergency hay crop, biennial white will be the most universally satisfactory, though the annual white is also popular, particularly in the South. Biennial yellow is sometimes used but is better suited for pasture than for hay.

The ordinary procedure in securing a stand of sweet clover is to sow it in the spring of the year with a nurse crop just as most of the other clovers are sown. After the grain has been removed it makes rapid growth and will provide good pasturage or a light crop of hay the same fall it is sown. The following year the main crop of hay or pasturage will be provided.

In sowing for emergency hay crops, however, it is best to sow it without a nurse crop of any kind. The land on which it is to be sown should be free from weeds and well prepared.

FARM FACTS

An ounce of fertility is worth more than a pound of cultivation.

The owner of a good garden does not have to sell garden sass to make the garden profitable.

The book of experience is not the only one from which farmers may get valuable information.

You use judgment when you breed cows, but colts are more valuable than calves.

A brush and can of kerosene are mighty good tools to loosen dirt and rust so that bearings may be properly adjusted and bolts and nuts tightened.

Coat of Lovely Fabric With Beige Fox Collar

This coat, made of a popular fabric, is practical enough for general wear. The collar of beige fox gives the needed touch of color; the low belt line and slightly flared skirt accent the smartness of the garment.

Colors Add Interest to Fashions of Season

Color is more important this season than at any time since the war. This statement has been made before, but it cannot be too much insisted upon, for the vogue for color brings with it such important consequences. In a season when many shades are popular, it is vital that matching shades be obtainable in hats and accessories, in silks, woollens and trimmings; and the vogue for certain colors is quite apt to influence the neutral tone ranges of shoes, hosiery and gloves.

It is very difficult this spring to pick out certain colors and say definitely that they are leading shades. The following sums up the opinion of a correspondent on color trends in which no one shade can be placed at the head of the list.

Blues are very important, for both day and evening, ranging from navy, through royal, "drapeau" or French flag blue, cornflower, China, natter to Madonna. These are well balanced blues with little leaning toward other shades in their tone. Periwinkle is the one blue that borders on another shade, in its case toward the mauve range, that is much in evidence, and one sees a great deal of it.

The mauve-violet range, tending more toward red than blue, is in favor, particularly for evening. One sees a great deal of mauvy pink and cyclamen, and of deeper lie-de-vin shades.

The greens are mostly in the yellow caste, and there are a great many both for day and evening. Those for day wear range from light grass green to fine woollens like covert coating, to a bright shade that is almost Irish green; while for evening, the range includes grass greens, pistaches, menthe and chartreuse.

Certain houses endorse clear reds, and one or two sponsor yellow, so there is a possibility that the vogue of such a house may result in a vogue for one of those colors; so far they are less generally seen than the other shades mentioned, although no color is ignored in the showings.

Tassels Important in Fashions This Season

So many articles of dress are finished with tassels that the tassel has come to have a significant part of its own. Infinitesimal containers of cosmetics, cigarettes and so on have often a large tassel to balance the wrist cord at the top. Some of the newest purse-bags and envelope purses are trimmed with fringe or finished with long silk tassels.

The tassels introduced in costumes are huge this season. A soft girdle finished with a large tassel at each end adds charm to an informal cloth frock or an afternoon gown of satin or crepe. In evening dress tassels of silk or of pearl, crystal or metal beads are used effectively on some of the newest gowns, and one conspicuously handsome evening wrap has two enormous tassels of silk and gold thread to finish scarf ends that fall from each shoulder at the back.

Chiffon Feathers Used as Border, Like Coq

Femininely elegant coats of georgette or chiffon follow the tailored mode of the moment, but soften their outline by means of a border of chiffon feathers, which is chiffon cut in feather-like pieces to resemble coq. This trimming was seen on a black chiffon cape, and round a rust-colored chiffon coat, and again in an entire flat boa in black-and-white chiffon, thus effectively simulating a feathered scarf.

The chiffon coat to accompany the lace or chiffon gown undoubtedly promises well this summer, and with it this mode of trimming will be more and more developed.

The Prince of Liars was the title the great writer Cervantes conferred on Ferdinand Mendez Pinto, a celebrated Portuguese traveler of the Sixteenth century, who published an account of his travels that was exaggerated.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

British Give Names to Railway Locomotives

London.—The London & North Eastern railway has revived a custom of the old stage coach days, when every coach had its name, and now gives every locomotive a title instead of a number.

The first of a series will be named for well known race horses, some of the new locomotives being labeled "Flying Fox," "Ormonde," "Hermit," "Diable," "Donovan," "Doncaster," and other notable runners of the turf. The Southern railway also has adopted the idea, naming its engines for well known men. "His Majesty," the largest locomotive on the line, is one, and "The Prince of Wales," another.

Every locomotive in the passenger service throughout the country soon will have its name and in time none but the little freight yard switching engines will be known by numbers.

Not wrangling' by the wayside
'Bout the Gospel — right or wrong—I sing my halleluia
An' my soul is in the song;
Though Jordan's banks are stormy
An' the tide a-runnin' strong,
I cross to the sweet fields of Eden!II.
I want to keep the comfort—
When the thorns at the breast,
That o'er the dark, deep river
There "remains a place of rest;"
The House of many mansions
In a country of the blest
Somewhere, in the sweet fields of Eden.III.
I never heed the whisper,
When waves o' trouble rise;
'Tis the dream that's in the singin'
Makes the mansions in the skies!"
For there's solace for my sorrow
When it seems a world o' sighs,
An' then I glimpse the sweet fields of Eden.IV.
Don't matter if it's yonder—
Beyond the sun an' moon,
Or nearer than I'm thinkin'—
The Light's a-comin' soon!
An' it's sweet to sing about it!
If you'll sing, I'll raise the tune:—
'Yonder, in the sweet fields of Eden!"

SAME BUSH*Green and Black Species Is Only Difference In Process of Manufacture.San Francisco, July 22.—
There are two distinct types of tea—black and green tea. Both are made from the same bush and both are equally pure. The difference is in the process of manufacture which gives each a different flavor. Black tea, after it has been plucked, is withered and partially "fired" or dried and, then allowed to oxidize by being exposed to the air. This gives black tea its dark reddish color when steeped. Green tea is immediately steamed after plucking, which prevents oxidation.
That constitutes the sole difference between the two types of tea.Science and Ourselves
There is nothing wrong with science. The danger in the future is that we may apply science destructively instead of constructively. The world's progress depends upon character, not upon scientific devices, and if we look to our characters the scientific devices will help our happiness.
If we don't—there may be chaos!Geese Travel FarThe biological survey says that

COLOR SCHEME FOR WOMAN'S BEAUTY FACE

The Vogue is Red, White and Blue—Greatest Tragedy in All World.

The patriotic makeup; red, white and blue, is the vogue for the coming season, according to the dictum of the National Cosmeticians convention in Chicago.

Heretofore red has been the principal color scheme.

Mrs. Ruth J. Maurer, president of the cosmeticians, says the new scheme calls for:

Face powdered to a chalky whiteness.

Lips as red as they can be gotten with a kiss-proof lipstick.

Eyelids penciled and shadowed blue.

"The effect makes a ravishing beauty out of most women," said Mrs. Maurer. "Women, whose features might otherwise be uninteresting become striking beauties after they have acquired an ivory complexion and cherry lips. The penciled eyelids form a perfect frame for sparkling eyes."

The new style may be named the "Iris March Makeup" for the vogue was started by Katherine Cornell, who plays the role of Iris March in Michael Arlen's play, "The Green Hat" in Chicago.

"The make up gives Miss Cornell an odd and piquant beauty," asserted Mrs. Maurer. "But of course this style will be for the slim lithe woman. The hope for the fat woman is in the rouge pot and lipstick. Cosmetics simulate youth. A face may be made youthful by skillfully applied toilet preparations and carry the psychological illusion of slenderness."

"Fair, fat and forty is an alliterative myth that has been exploded. No fat woman is beautiful at 40 or 20. There are some people who love a fat man, but nobody loves a fat woman. The greatest tragedy in the world is that of a man who marries a sylph like girl and watches her grow into a hippopotamus."

New Guinea Backward

While the island of New Guinea is the world's second largest island, it is the least known of all, and its people are said to be the most primitive and backward of any of the world's peoples. Their expressions of art are likewise of very little distinction or individuality.

WOMAN DIP TELLS OF HER THRILLS

Fascinated by Excitement of Going Into Pockets.

New York.—Mrs. Tillie Dorf, Brooklyn, who declares she became a pick-pocket when eight years old, will ask clemency when she goes before Kings County Judge McLaughlin for sentence. She is in the Raymond street jail, having pleaded guilty of picking the pocket of a woman in a Brooklyn department store. She took $10.30 and was caught by a store detective.

At the jail Mrs. Dorf gave an exhibition of her skill by extracting a vanity case from the pocket of a woman reporter.

"I have done that since I was eight years old," Mrs. Dorf said. "I began with relatives, and I have kept it up ever since. It gives me a thrill I can't get in any other way, but thrills don't count in the end. Sometimes I go straight for months. Then my fingers begin to tingle—I want to see if they can do again what they have so often done."

"As I grew older I began to think how many pocketbooks there were in the world, and how easy it would be to open them. I began to operate in cheap stores and on the sidewalks. After my marriage I promised to reform, but I was unable to break myself of my habit. I have no excuse to offer—I just can't help it."

Honors Even

An English hostess was very proud over the elevation of one of her family to the house of lords. "This makes the second of our family in the peers," she remarked to one of her callers. "Have you any relation in the house of lords?" "No," was the calm reply, "but I have two maiden aunts in the kingdom of Heaven."—Boston Transcript.

AMUSEMENTS

Chuckles, giggles and hilarious laughs succeeded each other at the Met theater yesterday when "Along Came Ruth," Viola Dana's latest Metro picture opened for a two days run.

This was the only possible reaction for an audience to Filmdom's peppiest comedienne in an amusing story of a small town. Viola Dana as Ruth Ambrose, the girl who woke up the sleepiest town in Maine, is simply irresistible; the supporting cast of the picture is excellent, among the players being Tully Marshall, Raymond McKee, Walter Hiers, DeWitt Jennings, Gale Henry and Victor Potel.

Winifred Dunn adapted this Henry W. Savage stage production which was written by Holman Day, and Eddie Cline directed the picture. The cameraman was John Arnold.

The gain which is made at the expense of reputation should rather be set down as a loss.

Undersea City

Submerged 30 feet below the surface of the Mediterranean sea, off the coast of Tunis, the ruins of an ancient city have been found by divers. They report that many large stone buildings were visible, outlined in dim shadows and sandy bottom, and that fish swarmed in and out of crumbled doorways. Scientists are preparing to make further explorations. Additional interest is attached to the discovery, as the city lies in waters described by Virgil and near the "Isle of the Lotus Eaters," of which Homer sang.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

SHE WANTED A REAL DOLL

By WALTER TAYLOR FIELD

TONY BANDINI sat on the bed in his little room over the kitchen at Caraffa's, where he boarded, and thought long and earnestly. The children were playing down stairs. He could hear little Francesca's voice begging her mother for a doll—not a rag doll, but a real doll "like the other girls had," and Mrs. Caraffa answered that if papa brought home good wages that week she should have one. Then Francesca laughed and clapped her hands, and she and her brother Bruno began to sing. They were having a good time, those children. He loved them. They were his friends. They were all that he had to love. His own children and his wife were dead. He had no kin except a brother in Italy who had disowned him. He had lost his job the week before and he had been drinking.

That was enough to make one think, but it was not all. A catastrophe had fallen upon him and upon that house—before which all lighter misfortunes were as nothing. There had been trouble last night at the Cafe Sicilia around the corner and a man had been killed. Tony was drunk at the time, but not so drunk as to be ignorant of how it was done. Caraffa had been with him. A stranger had come to their table and had picked a quarrel. There has been high words and the thrust of a knife under the stranger's heart. And it was Caraffa who had made the thrust. Tony knew that very well, though it was Tony's knife with which he did it.

Caraffa did not seem to know what he had done. Caraffa was very drunk, indeed. Joe Malato, the owner of the place, had seen the scuffle and perhaps he knew who had struck the blow, perhaps he did not. But Joe always protected his customers. He had opened the back door and told them to go, and they had gone—Tony leading Caraffa home, and leaving the stranger dead on the floor.

The crime could not be hidden long. Even now detectives must surely be on the trail. What should he do? Flight was open to him, but that would be a confession of guilt and he felt sure that he should in the end be caught. Tony had no money and no friends—except the Caraffas. Then, too, there was a terrible feeling of weakness—of incompetence. He was not equal to the effort.

Another thought struck him with terrific force. What of Caraffa? Caraffa had a family—Bruno and little Francesca—Ah, carissima! how he loved that little one! And Mrs. Caraffa was a good woman, who had been kind to him when he was sick. They were his friends—and Caraffa. What would happen to the wife and children if it should be known that Caraffa was the murderer?

An hour passed. Still Tony sat on the edge of the bed, lost in thought. Then there was a sharp rap at the door—a sound of footsteps and loud talking in the room below. The footsteps were on the stairs. They were at his door. The door swung open and two officers entered. "We want you," they said. That was all.

Downstairs all was confusion. Another officer was with Caraffa. Caraffa was protesting loudly. The children were crying. Mrs. Caraffa was gesticulating and uttering a torrent of speech. Tony said nothing. There was nothing to say. He and Caraffa went out with the officers.

At the station they were subjected to the usual grilling. Joe Malato, the owner of the Cafe Sicilia, was also there. Caraffa maintained—truly—that he remembered nothing about the murder. The police captain showed Tony the knife, stained with blood, and asked him whose it was.

"It was my knife," said Tony, simply. "And you stabbed the man, didn't you?" asked the captain.

Tony looked into the eyes of Joe Malato to see what he knew. The captain looked, too—that was his business. But the eyes of Malato were inscrutable. Then Tony thought of Bruno and little Francesca. What did it matter to him, after all?

There was a pause of not more than two seconds. Then he turned and looked fixedly at one of the brass buttons on the captain's coat while he said:

"Yes, I stabbed him." The captain turned to Malato. "Did you see the stabbing?" he asked.

Malato had received his cue. "Yes," he answered, "Tony Bandini did it." "Did Caraffa have anything to do with it?" asked the captain.

"No, he do nothing. He was asleep—He was drunk."

The captain turned to Caraffa. "Go home," he said. "We don't want anything more of you."

Caraffa went—looking with a pitiful backward look at Tony. He hesitated at the door, stopped a moment and said to the captain.

"Tony is a good man. I think he not do it."

"Do you know who did?" asked the captain.

"No, I not know," said Caraffa. "Get along then. If you were dead drunk, you're not a competent witness," snapped the captain.

Caraffa went out—to life and freedom. Tony looked at him curiously as he went. Then he thought again of the children. Yes, at the end of the week Francesca would have her doll.

Invention of Great Value
A chemical product resembling glass and useful for many of the same purposes recently was perfected by Fritz Pollak, a German inventor, says Popular Science Monthly. It can be rolled, bored, polished or cut, without the tendency to splinter that glass has. Because of this quality it is useful especially for automobile windows, optical instruments, ornaments and toilet articles. The inventor arrived at this product by condensing carbamide and theocarbamide with formaldehyde.

TOM HOWARD'S
De Luxe Orchastra Will Again Furnish Music For the C. A. C. Dance Saturday Night.
A couple of weeks ago we wrote a little article announcing that Tom Howard's De Luxe, Hotel Deshler orchestra would furnish the music for the C. A. C. Saturday night Jitney Dance, and suggesting that dance lovers and all those who enjoy good orchestra music could afford themselves a treat by attending this dance.
Evidently this opinion was shared by many as a large crowd was present on the night that Mr. Howard's syncopators held forth, and as far as known every single person who was present was well pleased. In fact the commendatory remarks regarding the music were so numerous and so emphatic that the dance committee immediately decided to secure this superb Columbus aggregation for a return engagement.

They were successful and the Howard orchestra will furnish the music for the dance on next Saturday night. If you were present at the time of their first engagement we know that you will be at the gym again on Saturday night if it is possible for you to be there. If you missed the first entertainment we urge you by all means to enjoy the second, as it is not a sure thing that this orchestra can be secured here again this season.
These Saturday night dances at the C. A. C. gym are getting to be a community institution. Many of the young folks are constant attendants, and at the close of the dance on one Saturday night begin to look forward in anticipation to the one of the following week.

If you have never acquired the habit, let us assure you that you have missed many pleasant evenings, and suggest that you can with much profit to yourself become a steady Saturday night patron at the gym. If you do not dance drop in anyhow. There are many non-dancers who are steady patrons, feeling that the pleasure of hearing the music and watching the young folks enjoy themselves is well worth the nominal charge made at the door.

The Value of a Good Memory

When Rhinelander Waldo was fire commissioner of New York and when Edward Croker was fire chief, Croker volunteered one day to take Waldo for a ride down Broadway in his famous ninety-horse-power red automobile, which he used when going to fires. Waldo's secretary, "Winnie" Sheehan, who's now a movie magnate, went along, too.

Waldo owned a number of brisk-moving cars himself and thought he knew something about speed, but he had never traveled with Croker. They sped down Broadway at a terrifying pace, shaving trolley cars, slicing curbstones and avoiding collisions with trucks by quarter-inch margins.

At Canal street a block compelled Croker to slow down. Instantly Waldo jumped out of the car and, muttering something about having forgotten something, dived into the nearest building. About then, Croker decided to call up fire headquarters and he, too, went away temporarily, leaving his dare-devil chauffeur and the yet breathless Sheehan in the machine. Croker returned to find only the chauffeur.

"Mr. Sheehan said for you to go ahead and have your ride out," stated the chauffeur. "He said he'd just remembered the same thing that Mr. Waldo did."

ARMY EXPERTS HAVE NEW RAPID-FIRE GUN

Seven-Millimeter Weapon An Improvement.

Washington.—Army ordnance experts are attempting to solve the shoulder semi-automatic rifle problem through development of a new type of reduced caliber weapon. This would increase by one-third the amount of ammunition that can be provided in front lines for the gun without any increase in weight.

J. D. Pederson, inventor and production engineer, has been employed for some time at Springfield armory to turn out the new gun, known as the seven-millimeter gun, and War department reports already show important advantages claimed for the weapon as compared to the two types of standard .30-caliber shoulder automatics with which the experts are also experimenting.

The new gun is a .276-caliber as compared to the .30 service ammunition standard.

Against New Ammunition Size.

The practical disadvantages of adding a new caliber of ammunition to the supply line burdens are fully realized, and may ultimately prevent adoption of the seven-millimeter gun.

As the army is now equipped, only the regular .30-caliber cartridges are needed for all rifles and machine guns, and troops can be restocked with ammunition from any depot or dump. This is a very high-power, long-range type of ammunition, and not suited to the probable short range use foreseen in war for shoulder semiautomatics.

Furthermore, it has been found far better results in the way of sustained fire, economy of weight and other particulars can be obtained with the seven-millimeter caliber.

One point already established is that the design of the Pederson seven-millimeter affords the best yet attained by ordnance experts for quick quantity production. "There is no reason to doubt," the official report states, "but that it will be easier and cheaper to put into production than any weapon hitherto designed."

Range of 1,000 Yards.

The new gun is built for a range of 1,000 yards, the maximum distance at which rapid sustained fire would be required. Beyond that range heavy machine-gun fire with regular .30 ammunition would be resorted to, as the shoulder gun is designed only for use against visible targets.

The gun is the equivalent in weight and size of the present Springfield army rifle. It loads with a ten-cartridge clip, ejecting the clip automatically with the last shot, and the gun and 340 rounds of ammunition have the same weight as the regular Springfield rifle and 220 rounds of service ammunition.

Because of the reduced powder charge and consequent reduced heating effect, it can be fired more rapidly and for a greater length of time without heating than either the Thompson or Gerand .30-caliber guns, and is also said to be free of lubricating and other mechanical difficulties which make the bigger guns subject to trouble under hard service conditions.

KIRBY JURY FAILS TO REACH VERDICT

JUDGE DISCHARGES JURORS WHEN THEY FAIL TO AGREE

Fourth Time a Jury Has Failed To Convict Josiah Kirby, President of The Cleveland Discount Company of Cleveland, Jury Stood Nine to Three For Acquittal.

For the fourth time, a jury has failed to convict Josiah Kirby on charges growing out of his operations as president of the Cleveland Discount Co.

Exactly 24 hours after it had received the charge of the court, a Delaware county jury was dismissed Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock because of its nine-to-three deadlock on the question of Kirby's guilt. The specific charge was the theft of $3000 worth of Cleveland Discount Co., preferred stock from Mrs. Grace Cooper, Delaware.

Two women and one man, out of the four women and eight men on the jury held out for conviction. After being dismissed, Mrs. Bonita Grimes, Mrs. Charles Jackman, and J. H. Rae admitted that they were set against the majority.

Mrs. Grimes was reported by all the jurymen to have been unrelenting in her contention that Kirby was guilty. Several other members of the jury declared quite freely that they were, of the opinion that Josiah Kirby had never committed any crime.

Judge Harry Jewell of the Delaware county common pleas court told the jury that he was disappointed that it could not reach a verdict, because the case was important and expensive. After questioning five jury members, all of whom said they thought a verdict was impossible, he dismissed the jury.

Attorney General C. C. Crabbe, who had prosecuted the case at the request of the governor, said he was disappointed and that his future course was undecided.

Kirby said that he considered a nine-to-three verdict for acquittal in the Delaware county courts a victory equivalent to his previous trials.

The nine-to-three vote was the largest that has ever been reported against Kirby. Once before in one of his two Cleveland trials, there was a jury disagreement because one woman held out for conviction. Once he obtained an acquittal in a California court. At present he is under federal indictment for using the mails to defraud.

Three times during Thursday the court learned from the jury that there was a deadlock and that agreement was impossible. The jury resumed its deliberations at 8:30 a. m., after spending the night under surveillance of court bailiffs, in Delaware hotels. At 10 a. m., L. A. Morrison, foreman of the jury, pounded on the outer door. When the court assembled for a report, Sheriff Fred D. Harter told Judge Jewell that the jury wished to make a statement. Ushered into the box, Morrison said no headway was made. A short jury recess was permitted and deliberations were resumed under the court's direction.

Summoned into the courtroom at noon, the jurors reported there was no decision in sight, and that the vote had remained unchanged since three o'clock Wednesday. Later it was learned that the first ballot had been eight to four for acquittal and that half an hour after retirement it had changed to nine to three, with Mrs. Grimes leading the argument for conviction.

After the noon report the judge sent the jurors to lunch. By 1 o'clock they were reassembled. Just after they retired they sent word to Judge Jewell that they would like to have him read the charge to them again so that they could hear his voice on some of the disputed points. The request was denied them because there was involved the well known principle of "there is no infection of the court," and because they had before them the written charge.

From the beginning of the trial it was admitted by all concerned that the most important point in question was the intent behind the procuring of 30 shares of preferred stock of the Cleveland Discount Co., from Mrs. Cooper, widow of a former Delaware minister. In the judge's charge it was pointed out that before a verdict of guilty could be returned it would be necessary to find that plans of the company to retire preferred stock had been devised by stock into his hands for his own use. Only three of the jurors thought that this intent was at all evident from the testimony and argument in the trial which opened July 13.

Immediately after the discharge of the jury Kirby left for Cleveland, from where he will go to Berkeley, California, to join his wife and two children. In California he is organizing another financial corporation.

Associated with the attorney general in the prosecution were H. H. Griswold, first assistant attorney general, and Wilbur E. Benoy, special counsel in the attorney general's office.

The defense counsel was headed by Luther Day and Walter D. Meals, both of Cleveland, who had associated with them Berne Jones, Delaware.

Filipino Coast Guard Nucleus of New Navy

Manila.—With the organization and training of the officers and crews of the insular fleet of coast guard cutters along military lines, approval of which has been given by Governor General Wood, department heads and Brig. Gen. Rafael Crame, chief of the constabulary, are laying a modest beginning for a future Philippine navy.

General Crame, with the approval of Secretary of the Interior Felipe Agoncillo, recently authorized the transfer of arms and other military equipment for use of the coast guard sailors, the men having volunteered to furnish their own uniforms.

At present the coast guard force consists of 300 officers and men. Although the sailors are not required to perform military service, it is said all have volunteered to do this additional work aboard ship and ashore.

THE OLD WORLD IS BECOMING A GRAND CAMP

Fifty-nine Nations Now Have More Men Under Arms Than in 1914.

Columbus, O., July 24 (UP).—There is nothing alarming in the fact that fifty-nine old world nations now have more men under arms than in 1914, Professor Wilbur Siebert, head of the Department of European history at Ohio State university and author of numerous essays on Europe, declared today.

In an exclusive interview Professor Siebert analyzed the United Press London dispatch showing how Europe rapidly is becoming an "armed camp."

These facts and figures are interesting and are important for the American people to know," the professor said. "But the increase in troops and air force improvements are not alarming. What these facts really show is that Europe is getting on her feet economically."

"Since the time of Charlemagne there has been war about every generation. But since the world war Europe has been engaged in re-building herself economically rather than in a military way. The array of military forces is a natural course of events. With a revival of economic conditions comes a rivalry for economic supremacy."

"This will continue for years before the people of Europe will begin thinking about war. Today the European outlook is decidedly optimistic."

On a recent tour of Europe, Professor Siebert said, he obtained the impression that if another war comes it will be between France and Great Britain due to the obliteration of the English channel as a barrier between the two countries by the development of the airplane. Naturally this is making both countries a bit nervous."

GOVERNOR VIC BOOMED FOR PRESIDENCY

Characteristics of Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and Woodrow Wilson.

Charles V. Truax, director of agriculture, in an address at a picnic of Hancock county Democrats at Findlay, paid a high tribute to Governor Vic Donahey and declared him to be presidential timber for 1928.

"Donahey has the characteristics of Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and Woodrow Wilson," the director stated.

He expressed the belief Governor Donahey would again be drafted into service by the people of Ohio for a third term as chief executive of the state.

Thomas B. Fletcher of Marion, congressman from the Eighth District, also was discussed as a candidate for the U. S. senate. Fletcher is now serving his first term in congress.

Thomas E. Dye, state chairman of the Democratic organization addressed the assembly on "The Comeback of Democracy."

He appealed to the Democracy of the state to lay aside bigotry and prejudice in every form.

Predicts Trip to Moon in "Jules Verne" Rocket

Boulder, Colo.—Human transportation to the moon by means of huge rockets may be a possibility in a few years—so rapid are the present day strides of science—in the opinion of Dr. Watson Davis, managing editor of Science Service.

"I am confident that in a few years a rocket will be perfected for making a trip, a la Jules Verne, from the earth to the moon," declared Doctor Davis in an address before the eighteenth annual convention of the American Society for the Advancement of Science here. "A model for such a rocket is now under construction," he said.

Doctor Davis also foresees the day when science will make possible the transformation of idiots into citizens through scientific treatment of the glands, and an era in which millions will be fed from synthetic food of Colorado's oil shale.

EFFECTIVE DRY LAW IN INDIANA

The dry law is the most stringent prohibition measure on the statute books of any state. Under the law a person with the odor of liquor about him is subject to prosecution while the discovery of empty liquor containers constitutes evidence of violation of the law.

MAKE SLOGAN FOR THE OHIO STATE FAIR

Treasure Chest Will be Filled With Big Array of Valuable Prizes.

An enormous Treasure Chest, it may be built a half block long, 50 feet high in which to display an illimitable array of articles, will be one of the attractions for the Diamond Jubilee anniversary of the Ohio State fair, August 31 to September 5. To the persons attending the fair who submit the most acceptable slogans for use in promoting the 1926 State fair, will be given the Treasure Chest contents.

The slogan for the 1925 State Fair is: "No State So Fair—No Fair So Great."

Manufacturers from Ohio and adjoining states are each contributing one unit of their product for the Treasurer's Chest wealth. This array will include, it is expected, everything from an automobile to a paper of pins including clothing, kitchen utensils, hardware, food products and an unitemized list of products.

Charles V. Truax, director of agriculture and G. R. Lewis, State fair manager, are having the Treasure Chest constructed. It will be placed in an advantageous place on the State fair grounds and the products contributed by the manufacturers will be displayed within the chest thruout fair week. Opportunity to contribute a 1926 State fair slogan will be given everyone attending this year's fair.

The best slogan to be selected from among those submitted by the more than 300,000 people who will attend the fair will earn for the contestant the privilege of possessing the Treasure Chest Capital prize. Other prizes will be distributed during Fair week.

OKLAHOMA CRITICISM IS SECONDED BY DONAHEY

Visiting Officials Condemn Penitentiary Idle House and Governor Agrees.

Columbus, July 23.—Conditions at the Ohio penitentiary, especially the existence of the "idle house," were scored in a statement made public yesterday by Oklahoma officials who recently made a tour of state prisons of the middle West.

The Ohio penitentiary was the most unsatisfactory one seen, John E. O'Neill, chairman of the board of public affairs of Oklahoma, declared.

Governor Donahey, when told of the statement, declared the criticism "is justified."

No, the rain does not damage Celetex Insulating Lumber. It is not effected by moisture and weather conditions. In many homes two-thirds of the heat in winter is wasted. Celetex stops heat waste without adding to the cost of building.

No home can be comfortable in all weather and is not modern unless properly insulated.

Celetex Insulating Lumber is used in thousands of refrigerator cars to keep heat in during winter and out during summer. It will do the same for the Built-Well Home.

Be sure and visit Monclair Addition now and see this home being built and covered with its warm coat before the weather-boarding and plaster goes on.

PLAN MUSEUM OF CIVIL WAR

Officials Ask That Pension Building Be Made Receptacle for Exhibits.

Washington.—Establishment of a Civil war museum in the Pension office building, the world's largest brick building in the court of which several inaugural balls have been held, probably will be authorized by congress soon after it meets in December.

The last survivor of the Revolutionary war was Daniel F. Bakeman, who died at Freedom, N. Y., April 5, 1869, aged one hundred and nine years and six months. The last widow pensioner of the war was Esther S. Damon of Plymouth Union, Vt., who died November 11, 1906, aged ninety-two years. The last survivor of the War of 1812 was Hiram Cronk of Ave, N. Y., who died May 13, 1905, aged one hundred and five years.

If history repeats itself, at least a quarter of a century will elapse before the chronicler of events will note the death of the last survivor of the Civil war, and the Twentieth century will be drawing to a close before the last widow pensioner will have passed away.

21,854 Veterans Die in Year.

In the last fiscal year 21,854 veterans of the Civil war and 21,296 widows of veterans were claimed by death. These figures give rise to many serious thoughts, the commissioner of pensions points out. What shall be done to preserve to future generations the history, traditions, lessons and inspiration of the wars, the intimate personal history of which is found in the 4,000,000 pension claims in the files of the pension bureau? In years to come, this bureau will be the mecca for thousands upon thousands seeking information concerning the men who fought in the Civil-war.

By act of August 7, 1882, the congress made provision for the Pension building as a memorial to the men who bore the brunt of battle in war, and especially, in the Civil war. The corner stone was laid on March 19, 1883, and in May, 1885, the operations of the pension system were transferred to the new building. The exterior frieze of the building, showing a procession of soldiers and sailors of all branches of the service, was designed by Casper Buberl, and is indestructible evidence for all ages of the purposes for which the structure was authorized, designed, builded and dedicated.

Plan War Material Exhibit.

In Washington and elsewhere throughout the country there is a wealth of material that can be brought together for display within the pension building, showing the distinctive accouterments and implements of each of our wars; also models, paintings, heirlooms and relics. The pension bureau would thus become one of the attractions of the national capital.

Now that the ranks of our Civil war veterans are fast thinning, it is thought fitting that steps be taken to make the Pension office building a lasting museum of our nation's wars, from whose honored dead, as the martyred Lincoln voiced his thought in his Gettysburg address, "we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Models Not Jazz Mad; Form Club to Prove It

New York.—Fifth avenue models are not "jazz mad" and because they are not have founded the Fifth Avenue Models' association.

Dorothy M. Penseel, temporary chairman of the committee, sent out the announcement in notes on lavender paper in which she said the models intended "to get back at the people who are always making trouble for us."

She listed six reasons for forming the association, the reasons being: "The sensational magazines place us in a false light.

"Marrying men think we are all jazz mad and gold diggers.

"We are home girls and just as respectable as other working girls.

"We don't marry millionaires.

"Modeling is no fun, it's hard work, and we earn our wages.

"We want the public to know that we models are serious-minded business girls."

And so another illusion is shattered.

City Submerged in 1642 Revealed by Lake's Fall

Geneva.—The remaining part of the ancient town of Antronaplano, submerged on July 27, 1642, by a flood of the River Antrona, has been revealed by the fall of the level of Lake Antrono and the subsequent dropping of the river.

The entire population of Antronaplano was wiped out and the town remained under ten feet of water. To day the roofs and upper floors of the houses emerged and visitors peering in can see the skeletons of the victims of three centuries ago.

Lake Lenan is the lowest in years and special landings have been constructed for steamboats as the water is too shallow to permit approaching the customary landings.

"GLOOMY DEAN"

Believes Laborer's Grandsons Are Equals of Peers.

The question of the decay—or otherwise—of the nobility that was the glory of a generation or so past among our British cousins has been a much discussed problem recently. In this week's issue of Liberty the Very Reverend William Inge, of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, known as "The Gloomy Dean," because of his lamentations and prophecies, takes up the discussion, saying:

"Aristocracies always decay; it is their nature to! Nothing fails like success; a ruling race or class always ends by ruling itself out.

"The war has given the coup de grace to a system which was already decaying. The young men of the upper class were the first to volunteer and the first to fall. Though they were the spoiled children of fortune and had every reason to cling to life, they exposed themselves with reckless self devotion—a sacrifice which was tragic because often unnecessary—and were mowed down till twenty per cent of all British officers were on the roll of honor.

"The privates paid just half this toll; one-tenth of the privates and one-fifth of the officers were killed. In this way scores of the old families were wiped out in the male line. The loss is irreparable; war selects the best for destruction.

"What the great war began taxation is finishing.

"I have in my mind two recently ennobled families whose grandfathers were day laborers. I cannot see that they are inferior in good looks or manners to the owners of the 'sixteen quarterings' on their armorial bearings."

Means of Obtaining Seed for Planting

Longer, Heavier Ears With Big Cobs Are Best.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The question of a possible relation between the physical characters of seed ears and productiveness is an important one in corn breeding and one which has been given much attention, says the United States Department of Agriculture. For many years the department has carried on a project for the production of improved varieties of corn for the different geographic sections of the United States, and in connection with this project records of the individual productiveness of several thousands of ears were kept. Measurements of the seed ears were also recorded, and the accumulated data, therefore, were well suited to a statistical study of the relation between seed-ear characters and productiveness.

The results of this study are published in Department Bulletin 1321, just issued. The department investigators have concluded that there is nothing in the data to indicate that selection on the basis of seed-ear characters could be used as a method of breeding. Selecting the longer, heavier ears with proportionately heavy cobs and with relatively few rows of wide, thick kernels is warranted as a means of obtaining a supply of good seed for general planting, however.

A copy of the bulletin may be secured upon request, as long as the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Coat of Lovely Fabric With Beige Fox Collar

This coat, made of a popular fabric, is practical enough for general wear. The collar of beige fox gives the needed touch of color; the low belt line and slightly flared skirt accent the smartness of the garment.

Improvement in Quality of Seed Help to Crops

The Department of Agriculture estimates that more than 14,000,000,000 pounds of seed, exclusive of seed potatoes, seed sugar cane and other vegetable planting stocks are sown annually in the United States. Even a small improvement in the quality of seeds would result in larger crops with little or no additional expense and an enormous gain in the aggregate production or in an equal production on a smaller acreage.

Improvement in his crops is well within the power of every farmer by means of buying better-class seed from expert organizations which are constantly on the lookout for improved and higher yielding varieties, and by following the work of their local experiment stations which are constantly testing varieties with a view to determining their availability and value for the state which they represent.

One of the easiest methods of increasing the yield is by using more carefully cleaned seed. A great deal of seed is produced which should never be sown as its quality does not justify its use. As the supply of farm seeds is usually in excess or at least equal to the demand it would hardly be profitable for farmers in general to try to turn seed specialist and produce their own seed, for the time and pains necessary would not yield the returns to make it worth while.

Sweet Clovers Adapted to Various Conditions

The sweet clovers are adapted to a wide range of soil and climatic conditions. They are among the hardiest plants grown and succeed where many other plants fail. Because of their deep rooting system they are more or less drought resistant. At the same time they seem to be able to withstand excessive moisture better than most crops. There are two essentials, however, to the successful growth of sweet clover. These are inoculation with the proper nitrifying bacteria and a soil rich in lime.

For an emergency hay crop, biennial white will be the most universally satisfactory, though the annual white is also popular, particularly in the South. Biennial yellow is sometimes used but is better suited for pasture than for hay.

The ordinary procedure in securing a stand of sweet clover is to sow it in the spring of the year with a nurse crop just as most of the other clovers are sown. After the grain has been removed it makes rapid growth and will provide good pasturage or a light crop of hay the same fall it is sown. The following year the main crop of hay or pasturage will be provided.

In sowing for emergency hay crops, however, it is best to sow it without a nurse crop of any kind. The land on which it is to be sown should be free from weeds and well prepared.

FARM FACTS

An ounce of fertility is worth more than a pound of cultivation.

The owner of a good garden does not have to sell garden sass to make the garden profitable.

The book of experience is not the only one from which farmers may get valuable information.

You use judgment when you breed cows, but colts are more valuable than calves.

A brush and can of kerosene are mighty good tools to loosen dirt and rust so that bearings may be properly adjusted and bolts and nuts tightened.

Tassels Important in Fashions This Season

So many articles of dress are finished with tassels that the tassel has come to have a significant part of its own. Infinitesimal containers of cosmetics, cigarettes and so on have often a large tassel to balance the wrist cord at the top. Some of the newest purse-bags and envelope purses are trimmed with fringe or finished with long silk tassels.

The tassels introduced in costumes are huge this season. A soft girle finished with a large tassel at each end adds charm to an informal cloth frock or an afternoon gown of satin or crepe. In evening dress tassels of silk or of pearl, crystal or metal beads are used effectively on some of the newest gowns, and one conspicuously handsome evening wrap has two enormous tassels of silk and gold thread to finish scarf ends that fall from each shoulder at the back.

Chiffon Feathers Used as Border, Like Coq

Femininely elegant coats of georgette or chiffon follow the tailored mode of the moment, but soften their outline by means of a border of chiffon feathers, which is chiffon cut in feather-like pieces to resemble coq. This trimming was seen on a black chiffon cape, and round a rust-colored chiffon coat, and again in an entire flat boa in black-and-white chiffon, thus effectively simulating a feathered scarf.

The chiffon coat to accompany the lace or chiffon gown undoubtedly promises well this summer, and with it this mode of trimming will be more and more developed.

Prince of Liars

The Prince of Liars was the title the great writer Cervantes conferred on Ferdinand Mendez Pinto, a celebrated Portuguese traveler of the sixteenth century, who published an account of his travels that was exaggerated.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

British Give Names to Railway Locomotives

London.—The London & North Eastern railway has revived a custom of the old stage coach days, when every coach had its name, and now gives every locomotive a title instead of a number.

The first of a series will be named for well known race horses, some of the new locomotives being labeled "Flying Fox," "Ormonde," "Hermit," "Diable," "Donovan," "Doncaster," and other notable runners of the turf.

The Southern railway also has adopted the idea, naming its engines for well known men. "His Majesty," the largest locomotive on the line, is one, and "The Prince of Wales," another.

Every locomotive in the passenger service throughout the country soon will have its name and in time none but the little freight yard switching engines will be known by numbers.

THE OLD TIME SINGER

I.
Not wranglin' by the wayside
'Bout the Gospel — right or wrong—
I sing my halleluia
An' my soul is in the song;
Though Jordan's banks are stormy
An' the tide a-runnin' strong,
I cross to the sweet fields of Eden!

II.
I want to keep the comfort—
When the thorns at the breast,
That o'er the dark, deep river
There "remains a place of rest;"
The House of many mansions
In a country of the blest
Somewhere, in the sweet fields of Eden.

III.
I never heed the whisper,
When waves o' trouble rise;
'Tis the dream that's in the singin'
Makes the mansions in the skies!"
For there's solace for my sorrow
When it seems a world o' sighs,
An' then I glimpse the sweet fields of Eden.

IV.
Don't matter if it's yonder—
Beyond the sun an' moon,
Or nearer than I'm thinkin'—
The Light's a-comin' soon!
An' it's sweet to sing about it!
If you'll sing, I'll raise the tune:
"Yonder, in the sweet fields of Eden!"

79TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

On Sunday, July 19th, Mrs. Christina Palm, of East Main street, celebrated her seventy-ninth birthday anniversary with a picnic at Olentangy Park, Columbus, where all her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren gathered to wish her happiness. There were about thirty members of the family present.

Mrs. Palm is a very remarkable woman for her age, going about much the same as she has for the past ten years, doing much of her home work and thoroughly enjoying every social gathering of her church and friends. It is to be hoped that Mrs. Palm will have many returns of the pleasant day she spent Sunday.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Miss Bertha Jones, of Wayne township, entertained for the weekend her sister, Mrs. J. N. Wilson, of Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wilson and son, Jack, of Youngstown, and Mrs. Margaret Lake, of Circleville.

An enjoyable day was spent Sunday at a picnic held in honor of the 79th birthday anniversary of Mr. John Wilkes. There were 54 others who enjoyed the day with him and all came with well filled baskets. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Wilkes, Mr. and Mrs. William Wilkes and son, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Strawser and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Strawser and children, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilkes and Mrs. Addie Laughlin and family, all of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Scott Smith and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Smith and Mr. Lewis Smith, of Williamsport; Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Hancher, of Fox Postoffice; Mr. and Mrs. John Geehring and family, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Throckmorton and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Blonde and son, Mr. and Mrs. Lorren Geehring and daughter, Mrs. Hulsey, Miss Ida Wilkes, Mr. Weslyn Collins and Miss Thelma Sharp, all of Columbus. Mr. Wilkes received many nice gifts. Everyone left wishing him many more happy birthday anniversaries. All were very grateful to Mr. Montelius for the use of the beautiful grounds.

TEA FROM THE SAME BUSHGreen and Black Species Is Only Difference In Process of Manufacture.

San Francisco, July 22.—There are two distinct types of tea—black and green tea. Both are made from the same bush and both are equally pure. The difference is in the process of manufacture which gives each a different flavor. Black tea, after it has been plucked, is withered and partially "fired" or dried and, then allowed to oxidize by being exposed to the air. This gives black tea its dark reddish color when steeped. Green tea is immediately steamed after plucking, which prevents oxidation. That constitutes the sole difference between the two types of tea.

Science and Ourselves

There is nothing wrong with science. The danger in the future is that we may apply science destructively instead of constructively. The world's progress depends upon character, not upon scientific devices, and if we look to our characters the scientific devices will help our happiness. If we don't—there may be chaos!

COLOR SCHEME FOR WOMAN'S BEAUTY FACE

The Vogue is Red, White and Blue—Greatest Tragedy in All World.

The patriotic makeup; red, white and blue, is the vogue for the coming season, according to the dictum of the National Cosmeticians convention in Chicago.
Heretofore red has been the principal color scheme.
Mrs. Ruth J. Maurer, president of the cosmeticians, says the new scheme calls for:
Face powdered to a chalky whiteness.
Lips as red as they can be gotten with a kiss-proof lipstick.
Eyelids penciled and shadowed blue.
"The effect makes a ravishing beauty out of most women," said Mrs. Maurer. "Women, whose features might otherwise be uninteresting become striking beauties after they have acquired an ivory complexion and cherry lips. The penciled eyelids form a perfect frame for sparkling eyes."
The new style may be named the "Iris March Makeup" for the vogue was started by Katherine Cornell, who plays the role of Iris March in Michael Arlen's play, "The Green Hat" in Chicago.
"The make up gives Miss Cornell an odd and piquant beauty" asserted Mrs. Maurer. "But of course this style will be for the slim lithe woman. The hope for the fat woman is in the rouge pot and lipstick. Cosmetics simulate youth. A face may be made youthful by skillfully applied toilet preparations and carry the psychological illusion of slenderness.
"Fair, fat and forty is an alliterative myth that has been exploded. No fat woman is beautiful at 40 or 20. There are some people who love a fat man, but nobody loves a fat woman. The greatest tragedy in the world is that of a man who marries a sylph like girl and watches her grow into a hippopotamus."

WOMAN DIP TELLS OF HER THRILLS

Fascinated by Excitement of Going Into Pockets.

New York.—Mrs. Tillie Dorf, Brooklyn, who declares she became a pick-pocket when eight years old, will ask clemency when she goes before Kings County Judge McLaughlin for sentence. She is in the Raymond street jail, having pleaded guilty of picking the pocket of a woman in a Brooklyn department store. She took $10.30 and was caught by a store detective.

At the jail Mrs. Dorf gave an exhibition of her skill by extracting a vanity case from the pocket of a woman reporter.

"I have done that since I was eight years old," Mrs. Dorf said. "I began with relatives, and I have kept it up ever since. It gives me a thrill I can't get in any other way, but I don't count in the end. Sometimes I go straight for months. Then my fingers begin to tingle—I want to see if they can do again what they have so often done."

"As I grew older I began to think how many pocketbooks there were in the world, and how easy it would be to open them. I began to operate in cheap stores and on the sidewalks. After my marriage I promised to reform, but I was unable to break myself of my habit. I have no excuse to offer—I just can't help it."

Honors Even

An English hostess was very proud over the elevation of one of her family to the house of lords. "This makes the second of our family in the peers," she remarked to one of her callers. "Have you any relation in the house of lords?" "No," was the calm reply, "but I have two maiden aunts in the kingdom of Heaven."—Boston Transcript.

AMUSEMENTS

Chuckles, giggles and hilarious laughs succeeded each other at the Met theater yesterday when "Along Came Ruth," Viola Dana's latest Metro picture opened for a two days run.

This was the only possible reaction for an audience to Filmdom's peppiest comedienne in an amusing story of a small town. Viola Dana as Ruth Ambrose, the girl who woke up the sleepiest town in Maine, is simply irresistible; the supporting cast of the picture is excellent, among the players being Tully Marshall, Raymond McKee, Walter Hiers, DeWitt Jennings, Gale Henry and Victor Potel.

Winifred Dunn adapted this Henry W. Savage stage production which was written by Holman Day, and Eddie Cline directed the picture. The cameraman was John Arnold.

The gain which is made at the expense of reputation should rather be set down as a loss.

Undersea City

Submerged 30 feet below the surface of the Mediterranean sea, off the coast of Tunis, the ruins of an ancient city have been found by divers. They report that many large stone buildings were visible, outlined in dim shadows and sandy bottom, and that fish swam in and out of crumbled doorways. Scientists are preparing to make further explorations. Additional interest is attached to the discovery, as the city lies in waters described by Virgil and near the "Isle of the Lotus Eaters," of which Homer sang.

Name of Greenland

Greenland was named by the old Scandinavian navigator Eric the Red. He gave the place an attractive name because he wanted to induce colonists from Norway to settle in the new country.

Maine Boundary Dispute

The "Arbogast War" is the popular name given to the move the state of Maine made in 1839 to enforce its rights on the territory claimed by itself and Canada. It cost the state a million dollars.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

Terror to Sailing Vessels

SHE WANTED A REAL DOLL

TONY BANDINI sat on the bed in his little room over the kitchen at Caraffa's, where he boarded, and thought long and earnestly. The children were playing down stairs. He could hear little Francesca's voice begging her mother for a doll—not a rag doll, but a real doll "like the other girls had," and Mrs. Caraffa answered that if papa brought home good wages that week she should have one. Then Francesca laughed and clapped her hands, and she said her brother Bruno began to sing. They were having a good time, those children. He loved them. They were his friends. They were all that he had to love. His own children and his wife were dead. He had no kin except a brother in Italy who had disowned him. He had lost his job the week before and he had been drinking.

That was enough to make one think, but it was not all. A catastrophe had fallen upon him and upon that house—before which all lighter misfortunes were as nothing. There had been trouble last night at the Cafe Sicilia around the corner and a man had been killed. Tony was drunk at the time, but not so drunk as to be ignorant of how it was done. Caraffa had been with him. A stranger had come to their table and had picked a quarrel. There had been high words and the thrust of a knife under the stranger's heart. And it was Caraffa who had made the thrust. Tony knew that very well, though it was Tony's knife with which he did it.

Caraffa did not seem to know what he had done. Caraffa was very drunk, indeed. Joe Malato, the owner of the place, had seen the scuffle and perhaps he knew who had struck the blow, perhaps he did not. But Joe always protected his customers. He had opened the back door and told them to go, and they had gone—Tony leading Caraffa home, and leaving the stranger dead on the floor.

The crime could not be hidden long. Even now detectives must surely be on the trail. What should he do? Flight was open to him, but that would be a confession of guilt and he felt sure that he should in the end be caught. Tony had no money and no friends—except the Caraffas. Then, too, there was a terrible feeling of weakness—of incompetence. He was not equal to the effort.

Another thought struck him with terrific force. What of Caraffa? Caraffa had a family—Bruno and little Francesca—Ah, carissima! how he loved that little one! And Mrs. Caraffa was a good woman, who had been kind to him when he was sick. They were his friends—and Caraffa. What would happen to the wife and children if it should be known that Caraffa was the murderer?

An hour passed. Still Tony sat on the edge of the bed, lost in thought. Then there was a sharp rap at the door—a sound of footsteps and loud talking in the room below. The footsteps were on the stairs. They were at his door. The door swung open and two officers entered. "We want you," they said. That was all.

Downstairs all was confusion. Another officer was with Caraffa. Caraffa was protesting loudly. The children were crying. Mrs. Caraffa was gesticulating and uttering a torrent of speech. Tony said nothing. There was nothing to say. He and Caraffa went out with the officers.

At the station they were subjected to the usual grilling. Joe Malato, the owner of the Cafe Sicilia, was also there. Caraffa maintained—truly—that he remembered nothing about the murder. The police captain showed Tony the knife, stained with blood, and asked him whose it was.

"It was my knife," said Tony, simply. "And you stabbed the man, didn't you?" asked the captain.

Tony looked into the eyes of Joe Malato to see what he knew. The captain looked, too—that was his business. But the eyes of Malato were inscrutable. Then Tony thought of Bruno and little Francesca. What did it matter to him, after all?

There was a pause of not more than two seconds. Then he turned and looked fixedly at one of the brass buttons on the captain's coat while he said:

"Yes, I stabbed him."
The captain turned to Malato. "Did you see the stabbing?" he asked.

Malato had received his cue. "Yes," he answered, "Tony Bandini did it."
"Did Caraffa have anything to do with it?" asked the captain.

"No, he do nothing. He was asleep—He was drunk."

The captain turned to Caraffa. "Go home," he said. "We don't want anything more of you."

Caraffa went—looking with a pitiful backward look at Tony. He hesitated at the door, stopped a moment and said to the captain.

"Tony is a good man. I think he not do it."

"Do you know who did?" asked the captain.

"No, I not know," said Caraffa. "Get along then. If you were dead drunk, you're not a competent witness," snapped the captain.

Caraffa went out—to life and freedom. Tony looked at him curiously as he went. Then he thought again of the children. Yes, at the end of the week Francesca would have her doll.

Invention of Great Value
A chemical product resembling glass and useful for many of the same purposes recently was perfected by Fritz Pollak, a German inventor, says Popular Science Monthly. It can be rolled, bored, polished or cut, without the tendency to splinter that glass has. Because of this quality it is useful especially for automobile windows, optical instruments, ornaments and toilet articles. The inventor arrived at this product by condensing carbamide and theocarbamide with formaldehyde.

TOM HOWARD'S
De Luxe Orchastra Will Again
Furnish Music For the C. A. C.
C. Dance Saturday Night.

A couple of weeks ago we wrote a little article announcing that Tom Howard's De Luxe, Hotel Deshler orchestra would furnish the music for the C. A. C. Saturday night Jitney Dance, and suggesting that dance lovers and all those who enjoy good orchestra music could afford themselves a treat by attending this dance.
Evidently this opinion was shared by many as a large crowd was present on the night that Mr. Howard's syncopators held forth, and as far as known every single person who was present was well pleased. In fact the commendatory remarks regarding the music were so numerous and so emphatic that the dance committee immediately decided to secure this superb Columbus aggregation for a return engagement.

They were successful and the Howard orchestra will furnish the music for the dance on next Saturday night. If you were present at the time of their first engagement we know that you will be at the gym again on Saturday night if it is possible for you to be there. If you missed the first entertainment we urge you by all means to enjoy the second, as it is not a sure thing that this orchestra can be secured here again this season.
These Saturday night dances at the C. A. C. gym are getting to be a community institution. Many of the young folks are constant attendants, and at the close of the dance on one Saturday night begin to look forward in anticipation to the one of the following week.

If you have never acquired the habit, let us assure you that you have missed many pleasant evenings, and suggest that you can with much profit to yourself become a steady Saturday night patron at the gym. If you do not dance drop in anyhow. There are many non-dancers who are steady patrons, feeling that the pleasure of hearing the music and watching the young folks enjoy themselves is well worth the nominal charge made at the door.

The Value of a Good Memory

When Rhinelander Waldo was fire commissioner of New York and when Edward Croker was fire chief, Croker volunteered one day to take Waldo for a ride down Broadway in his famous ninety-horse-power red automobile, which he used when going to fires. Waldo's secretary, "Winnie" Sheehan, who's now a movie magnate, went along, too.

Waldo owned a number of brisk-moving cars himself and thought he knew something about speed, but he had never traveled with Croker. They sped down Broadway at a terrifying pace, shaving trolley cars, slicing curbstones and avoiding collisions with trucks by quarter-inch margins.

At Canal street a block compelled Croker to slow down. Instantly Waldo jumped out of the car and, muttering something about having forgotten something, dived into the nearest building. About then, Croker decided to call up fire headquarters and he, too, went away temporarily, leaving his dare-devil chauffeur and the yet breathless Sheehan in the machine. Croker returned to find only the chauffeur.

"Mr. Sheehan said for you to go ahead and have your ride out," stated the chauffeur. "He said he'd just remembered the same thing that Mr. Waldo did."

ARMY EXPERTS HAVE NEW RAPID-FIRE GUN

Seven-Millimeter Weapon An Improvement.

Washington. — Army ordnance experts are attempting to solve the shoulder semi-automatic rifle problem through development of a new type of reduced caliber weapon. This would increase by one-third the amount of ammunition that can be provided in front lines for the gun without any increase in weight.

J. D. Pederson, inventor and production engineer, has been employed for some time at Springfield armory to turn out the new gun, known as the seven-millimeter gun, and War department reports already show important advantages claimed for the weapon as compared to the two types of standard .30-caliber shoulder automatics with which the experts are also experimenting.

The new gun is a .276-caliber as compared to the .30 service ammunition standard.

Against New Ammunition Size.

The practical disadvantages of adding a new caliber of ammunition to the supply line burdens are fully realized, and may ultimately prevent adoption of the seven-millimeter gun.

As the army is now equipped, only the regular .30-caliber cartridges are needed for all rifles and machine guns, and troops can be restocked with ammunition from any depot or dump. This is a very high-power, long-range type of ammunition, and not suited to the probable short range use foreseen in war for shoulder semiautomatics.

Furthermore, it has been found far better results in the way of sustained fire, economy of weight and other particulars can be obtained with the seven-millimeter caliber.

One point already established is that the design of the Pederson seven-millimeter affords the best yet attained by ordnance experts for quick quantity production. "There is no reason to doubt," the official report states, "but that it will be easier and cheaper to put into production than any weapon hitherto designed."

Range of 1,000 Yards.

The new gun is built for a range of 1,000 yards, the maximum distance at which rapid sustained fire would be required. Beyond that range heavy machine-gun fire with regular .30 ammunition would be resorted to, as the shoulder gun is designed only for use against visible targets.

The gun is the equivalent in weight and size of the present Springfield army rifle. It loads with a ten-cartridge clip, ejecting the clip automatically with the last shot, and the gun and 340 rounds of ammunition have the same weight as the regular Springfield rifle and 220 rounds of service ammunition.

Because of the reduced powder charge and consequent reduced heating effect, it can be fired more rapidly and for a greater length of time without heating than either the Thompson or Gerand .30-caliber guns, and is also said to be free of lubricating and other mechanical difficulties which make the bigger guns subject to trouble under hard service conditions.
